Delegates to District Convention Will Be Tendered Banquet and Ball

Seventy-five delegates to the district convention of the Fraternal Union of America, holding a one-day session in Atlanta Thursday, will be tendered a banquet and ball Thursday night at the Winthrop hotel, following a day of meetings, addresses, elections, visits to the federal penitentiary and the parks and boulevards of the city.

The delegates began arriving Wednesday and Thursday morning. Following an executive session at the Red Sea hotel at 10 a. m., where addresses of welcome were delivered, the delegates elected eleven of their order to the supreme council, which meets in Pasadena, Cal. July 27-28.

After a delightful luncheon the delegates were taken for a tour of the city.

FOR HAY FEVER OR ASTHMA

Many persons dread July on account of the recurrence of hay fever, croup, asthma, because it heats and soothes that raw, rasping feeling in the throat and eases the choking sensation. It lays inflammation and irritation and brings about easy and natural breathing. Contains no habit-forming drugs. Sold everywhere. (A.D.V.)

FOUR DRINKS EACH DAY IS SUFFICIENT

If Properly Taken Will Drive Away Half the Common Ills of City People

Nature's most wonderful draught, from a medical standpoint, is a tea-spoonful of liquid Vitallitas in a half glass of either hot or cold water; nothing known means more for the elimination of unhealthy bodily conditions. The man or woman who suffers dyspepsia, or its train of ills, who has neurasthenia or nervous disorders, will find quick relief in Vitallitas and should find cure in its use. It is estimated that one-third of city people are indisposed all the time and a large per cent of those are sufferers of chronic disorders. They are particularly subject to ailments of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood.

Vitallitas is extracted out of the earth. It is wholly and purely a natural medicine and it contains mineral properties and natural forces upon which health and life depend. Numerous cures are constantly being reported from the use of Vitallitas. It will do you good. See the display and sample Vitallitas at Jacobs' Pharmacy, 23 Whitehall St., or write them for information. (A.D.V.)

RECEIVING GOOD PRICES Exchange Says Price Per Crate Better Than This Time Last Year

Georgia peach growers, marketing their fruit through the Georgia Fruit exchange, are this year getting higher prices per crate than this time last year, in spite of the fact that the number of peaches marketed for July 1 is greater for 1915 than it was in 1914, and that 200 cars of peaches have been placed in competition with the Georgia fruit from Texas and Arkansas.

This interesting information was given out by the Georgia Fruit exchange Thursday. It was stated that up to July 1 the total Georgia peach shipment for the season of 1915 was 222 cars as against 201 cars at the same date in 1914.

As an indication of the increased price received for 1915 crop as against the price paid for the 1914 crop, it is pointed out that on June 30, 1914, Carman peaches were selling from $1 to $1.12 1/2 f. o. b. point, whereas this year the same peaches are bringing $1.50 to $1.75 per crate f. o. b. Last year the Georgia growers were shipping Hileys in carload lots on June 15, but to date no Hileys have moved.

It is estimated that by the time the growers have finished shipping their Carman crop this year the movement of early varieties will be at least 500 cars heavier than any season past, and if the same marketing judgment is continued the growers will reap the benefit of the good prices rather than allow them to go into the hands of speculators.

The railroads are co-operating with the exchange to the fullest extent in the matter of transportation and refrigeration service this year, according to General Manager Charles M. Smith. The exchange has been notified by the Pennsylvania railroad that it will make no deliveries of peaches on July 5, which is to be celebrated as a legal holiday, but will operate their perishable trains on July 4 and 5, so there will be no delay to Georgia peaches in transit.

The saloons applications, which have already been promised the executive veto, and as a result many proprietors have withdrawn application for pool rooms. Now there are pending only 26 applications and 14 of these are not connected with saloons.

PERMIT ASK REHEARING

Atlanta and A. and M. Claim Financial Statements Misrepresented

Two of the nine locker clubs denied permits by the city council last Monday have filed applications for a rehearing, charging that their financial statements were misrepresented to the council, and the police committee in session Thursday afternoon will pass on the applications.

After the meeting of the committee, which will also consider the six club applications referred to it by council and also the applications for pool room permits, Mayor Woodward is expected to act upon the five club applications and the 123 saloons applications, which have been passed by the council.

It is probable that the police committee, besides separating pool rooms from beer saloons, will urge that women be not admitted to the clubs.

The clubs making application for a rehearing are the Atlanta club and the M. & M. club. Both declare that their statements were not placed properly before the city council in that the items of expense quoted as going exclusively to salaries in reality covered a number of other expenses, and that the salaries were extremely moderate. In event the committee decides to reopen the two cases in council it will probably grant the two clubs temporary permits to operate until the issue has been definitely settled by council.

While he announced that he was waiting for the action of the police committee it was the consensus of opinion about the city hall Thursday morning that Mayor Woodward is going to veto the club applications already granted by council, and that the entire club matter will as a result come up to be handled at next Monday's meeting of the council.

The saloon applications, where the saloon is connected with a pool room have already been promised the executive veto, and as a result many proprietors have withdrawn application for pool rooms. Now there are pending only 26 applications and 14 of these are not connected with saloons.

"DRY" FORCES TO HOLD MASS MEETING TONIGHT

Situation in Georgia Will Be Discussed at Gathering in State Capitol

A prohibition mass meeting will be held in the house of representatives at the capitol at 6 o'clock Thursday night when "Better Prohibition and Law Enforcement in Georgia" will be discussed. No formal speeches have been scheduled, but there will be talks on prohibition.

The prohibitionists say they are going to have a hand in the fight before the legislature, where two prohibition bills are pending. One would do away with the anti-shiping bill, and the other would make it impossible for liquor to be shipped into the state.

The anti-shiping bill is intended to come under the provisions of the federal measure prohibiting the shipment of liquor for illegal purposes into dry states.

SLATON DEFENDS STATE

NEW YORK PAPERS

Ex-Governor Says He Asks No Praise for Doing His Duty

All of the New York papers of Wednesday carry stories about the arrival in that city of former Governor John M. Slaton and Mrs. Slaton. All of the papers carry interviews with the ex-governor, the substance of which is the same. The following is from the New York World:

"I don't want any praise for having commuted Frank's sentence," said Mr. Slaton. "If you'd compliment me for a speech I'd made I'd feel flattered. Or if you told me that I'd designed a nice house or laid out a beautiful garden I'd be pleased. But if you were to leave $10,000 in a room where I was not stealing it I wouldn't feel particularly complimented."

"I might have lost a couple of nights' sleep enjoying the adulation of the mob had I allowed Frank to go to the gallows, but I wouldn't have had a comfortable night's sleep after that for the next forty years, if I live that long."

Mr. Slaton is a fine, big, unassuming southerner. He is forty-eight years old. Mrs. Slaton, still in her thirties, accompanies him. After a few days of sight-seeing about this city they are going to Sacramento, N. Y., to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Liddle. After that they will go to Seattle, then to the exposition at San Francisco and then back to Atlanta, where the former governor will resume his practice of law.

He told an interesting story of how he first let it be known that he was going to save Frank's life. He and Mrs. Slaton were in their library at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. He had been deliberating for hours. He turned to his wife and said:

"Dear, my conscience and my mind will not allow me to send that man to the gallows. It may mean my own life and it probably will mean my political life if I commute him, but I'm going to do it. What do you say?"

The ex-governor isn't sure that his political career is ended after all. It is no secret that his ambition for years has been to be United States senator from Georgia. That work he reported asked him:

"Will you be a candidate for that office at the next election, governor?"

"If the people want me—and if Mr. Slaton let me," he replied.

"Here's one thing I wish the north to know," he said. "I didn't slip out of Atlanta, or sneak away. Within a couple of days of my decision caused all the excitement I was walking about the streets as usual. I have nothing to fear."

"Another thing I'd like to have known is this. Many good people of Georgia, for whom I have the greatest respect, disapproved of my action in all sincerity because of their very respect for the courts and law. But they did not realize that only one of the many judges who passed on the case had a right to grant a new trial—Judge Roan, who passed sentence on Frank."

"Judge Roan realized that he made a mistake. He wrote to me and begged me to commute the sentence."

Mr. and Mrs. Slaton are staying at the Waldorf. They attracted a great amount of attention when their identity became known.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED WHEN AUTO HITS CAR

Accident at Bellwood Avenue and Franklin Street Blamed on Slippery Pavement

Three women and one man were hurt badly Wednesday night about 9 o'clock when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into an English avenue street car at the corner of Bellwood avenue and Franklin street.

The injured are L. W. Phillips, 297 East Georgia avenue, driving the car; East Georgia hospital; with no bones broken, but painful bruises; Mrs. M. E. Shaw, of Marietta, with a broken hip, forehead; Mrs. Ray Stauffer, 134 Hill street; with a broken arm, broken knee cap and minor bruises; Ella German, color nurse, of Marietta, at Fairview hospital, with lacerated scalp.

Mr. Phillips had driven the two ladies and a child to get the services of the old colored woman as a nurse at the Fairview hospital. They were returning home from the city through a driving rain and the slippery streets caused the machine to slide into the street car.

FUGITIVE SENDS CARD TO CHIEF L. B. BEAVERS

I. H. Cheek, indicted by the grand jury for highway robbery, being charged with being one of the four men who held up and robbed Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Kelly of $1,200 in Inman Park several months ago, sent a post card to Chief Beavers Wednesday as follows:

"If you catch me, I'll get away. I am now in Baltimore."

There is a $100 reward out for Cheek. The other three men charged with the robbery have been caught. Cheek, once arrested, was released by a judge of the but was released by a judge of the municipal court for want of prosecution. Cheek then made good his getaway and has not been caught again.

MANAGER AND BAR MAN OF CLUB ARE HELD

Charged with selling liquor to a man who was not a member of the Pan-Hellenic locker club, George Brown, manager of the club, and W. Watson, bartender, were bound over under $1,000 bond each by Recorder Johnson Wednesday afternoon and were fined $200 each.

MR. AND MRS. MULLER BACK FROM LONG TRIP

Mr. George W. Muller, Atlanta manufacturer of bank fixtures, has returned from an eight weeks' trip through the north and west. He was accompanied by Mrs. Muller. They visited the principal cities in twenty-one states.

Mr. Muller declares he found business conditions everywhere apparently the same as they are in Atlanta.

Mr. Walker Better

George I. Walker, agent of the Atlanta Joint Terminal, is still confined to his bed at his home on Washington street by illness that has kept him there since the latter part of April. Present indications, however, point to an early improvement.

GERMAN SUBMARINE ADHERED TO LAW, IS BELIEF OF OFFICIALS.

The case of the Armenian constitutes the first since the sinking of the Lusitania in which American lives have again been lost. The expectation here has been that Germany's reply to the last American note would make some concessions that would insure the safety of Americans on the high seas and especially upon passenger vessels. Comparatively little attention has been given to the case of Americans in the light of the new aspects developed by the sinking of the Armenian were the subject of widespread comment since it was pointed out in various quarters that the incident was most likely to draw forth some expression on the part of the United States government concerning the association of American citizens with the carriage of contraband on ships chiefly devoted to such trade.

Eleven Americans Lost

With Nineteen of Crew
At Avonmouth, England, July 1.—There were eleven Americans among the nineteen members of the crew who lost their lives when the German submarine U-58 off the coast of England, Monday, June 28, torpedoed the Leyland liner freight steamer Armenian.

The German submarine U-58 off the coast of England, Monday, June 28, torpedoed the Leyland liner freight steamer Armenian. The vessel had a crew of seventy-two men and carried ninety-six men as cargo.

The submarine first was sighted by the man at the wheel and though the ship was pushed to the limit the quick craft rapidly overhauled her and commenced shelling. The Armenian's efforts to keep her stern to the surface were futile.

The faster vessel circled the freighter and the German commander, through a megaphone, ordered the Armenian's captain to surrender or he would sink the ship.

The shipper of the Leyland liner struggled hard to create the undersea boat, but the latter dropped a shell through a skylight into the steamer's engine room, putting the engine out of action. The Armenian then surrendered.

Life boats were lowered and the crew and some seventy male passengers, nearly all Americans, scrambled into them. As the boat was being lowered a shell from the submarine cut the falls of the boat. The occupants were spilled into the water and presumably were drowned.

Five boats loaded with survivors got away. The submarine then fired two torpedoes into the Armenian, and the vessel sank within thirty minutes.

The survivors rowed around in the boats till Tuesday morning when a steam trawler landed them at Avonmouth.

Wilson Is Informed of Armenian Incident
CORNISH, N. H., July 1.—President Wilson was informed of the sinking of the Dominion liner Armenian by a German submarine, and of the fact that a number of Americans were reported missing. It was estimated that the forces engaged amounted to two divisions. The attack, however, was checked. Two fresh movements against our trenches at the east of the Benaville road were repulsed.

Another violent German attack in vicinity of Metz has been completely checked. The Germans suffered important losses.

The president has been told that a favorable reply from Germany to the last American note protesting against the submarine warfare was probable and, therefore, word of the fact that the American with loss of lives was received here with surprise.

It was said the president had not changed his plan of remaining here over July 4 because of the Armenian incident.

President Wilson has instructed the state department to make a full investigation and to fully inform the public of the incident.

He remained in his study during the forenoon to be in constant touch with Washington.

HUERTA TRIAL PUT OFF; DEFENDANTS ON BOND

Zapata Forces in Mexico City Charged With Inciting Riot Among Public

(By Associated Press.) EL PASO, Tex., July 1.—The case against Victoriano Huerta, Pascual Orozco and four others charged with conspiracy to violate the United States neutrality laws was postponed today to July 15. The defendants were continued under the same bonds.

The postponement was granted on request of attorneys for the prosecution, H. E. Crawford, assistant United States district attorney, said the government had been unable to collect and arrange all its evidence or to bring important witnesses into court.

The defense agreed to the government's request, and briefly explained the status to the defendants, who quietly left the court room.

The agreement was reached shortly before the hour set for the hearing.

Long before the hour fixed for the preliminary hearing prominent Mexicans, adherents of Huerta, representatives of the Carranza and Villa governments reached the court room. Huerta, accompanied by J. P. Rattiner, an interpreter, entered the court room and took his seat quietly. He was followed in a few minutes by Pascual Orozco, Jose Zozaya, and Frank and Ike Alderete. The last defendant to arrive was General Marcelino Charvaz.

Huerta greeted his co-defendants warmly and chatted with friends and newspaper men while awaiting the calling of the case.

The court proceedings passed off without indication of a trial.

RAOUL HOPES TO SETTLE HIS CASE OUT OF COURT

Says He'll Talk "In Detail" if It Comes to Show-Down—Enjoys His Detention

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) MILLIKEN, Ga., July 1.—G. Raoul, Jr., who is being sued for divorce by Mrs. Winifred Raoul, who names "a certain Mrs. Upton Sinclair," as co-respondent, today explained the postponement to The Journal representative.

"After consultation with my attorneys I am not willing to say more in reply to the recent statements appearing in the daily papers in regard to the petition of my wife for divorce than that in are not the allegations contained therein and should be settled outside of the court."

"I believe that the entire case can and should be settled outside of the court, and until every effort in this direction is exhausted, I am unwilling to enter into any discussion of details. It appears to me that the case is attracting more attention than it deserves. I feel sure that should the case go to the courts, a jury of Jenkins county citizens would give me a square deal, and I have nothing to conceal either in my public or private life. If it comes to a showdown I can and will discuss the charges brought against me in detail and at length."

Raoul has set up his cell at the jail in a very neat and tasteful manner and installed a handsome mahogany talking machine. He is reportedly supplied with a complete assortment of grand opera records.

S. W. Palmer, mayor of the city, tendered him a barbecue last evening, to which he was invited by friends.

He is given every consideration by the authorities, Sheriff Johnson furnishing him with a deputy whenever he wishes to go around town, or to his meals, which are served to him at Miller's best hotel.

News And Comment In General Assembly

SENATE PLANS TRIP TO CHATTANOOGA SHORTLY

A trip to Chattanooga, in which the entire senate will be invited to join, for the purpose of inspecting the state's western and Atlantic terminals in that city, is contemplated within the next two weeks by the Western and Atlantic committee, of which Senator E. P. Dobbs, of the Thirty-fifth, is chairman.

However, C. M. Chandler, chairman of the state railroad commission, and attorney, former chairman of the Western and Atlantic committee of the house, will be invited to appear before the senate committee and express their views on the Western and Atlantic situation.

It is thought that the entire senate will accompany the Western and Atlantic committee on the Chattanooga trip, as the committee is composed of thirty-one senators, more than three-fourths of the entire forty-four members of the senate, and no business could be transacted while the committee was away, as a quorum would not be left behind.

SENATOR HARRIS ADDED TO W. & A. COMMITTEE

Upon motion of Senator E. P. Dobbs, of the Thirty-fifth, chairman of the Western and Atlantic committee, the state senate Wednesday added Senator W. H. Harris, of the Forty-third, to that committee.

Senator Dobbs said that Senator Harris had been a resident on the W. & A. railroad for a long time, and was conversant with the affairs of the road.

SECRETARY FRITZ JONES ACQUAINTED BY SENATE

Fritz Jones, secretary to Governor Nat Harris, made his debut into the state senate Wednesday with his first "official communication from the governor."

He marched down the center aisle, spoke the formal words in great style, handed the communication to Secretary McClatchey, bowed to the senate, and marched out amid vociferous applause from the senators.

NOTABLES ON EASTMAN WHEEL

While Senator Hoke Smith addressed the general assembly in the house Wednesday a group of distinguished auditors sat on the rostrum by the speaker's desk.

Governor Nat E. Harris and Congressman William Schley Howard were there; Elden Persons, president of the senate, presided, and Speaker W. H. Burwell, of the house, sat next to President Persons. D. F. McClatchey, secretary of the senate, was present, and John T. DeLoe, clerk of the house, completed the group.

HARDWICK WALL ADDRESS LEGISLATURE ON JULY 8

Upon motion of the house and senate Wednesday that the joint committee appointed to arrange dates for Senator Hoke Smith and Senator Thomas W. Hardwick to address the two houses in joint session had fixed Thursday, July 8, as the date for Senator Hardwick to speak.

Senator Smith had his address to the joint session on Wednesday, holding their attention for two hours with a discussion of the notable achievements of President Wilson's administration and the Democratic congress, of blockade of neutral ports by Great Britain and of the Mexican situation, a greater heavy, and other subjects of national and international interest.

300 CARRANZA SOLDIERS ARE KILLED IN WRECK

Women and Children Also Among Dead and Injured in Railroad Disaster

(By Associated Press.) LAREDO, Tex., July 1.—Three hundred Carranza soldiers and their wives and children were killed and several killed and injured in the wreck of a military train near Monterrey, between Tampico and Monterrey, according to an American who arrived here today from the interior. The accident occurred ten days ago, he said.

The American traveler's story was the first information here of the wreck, but this was attributed to the censorship which has been extraordinarily strict recently. The train was heavily loaded and proceeding at full speed when it left the track, the American said, and tumbled into a small canyon.

The soldiers, with their wives and children and scores of women camp followers, were being sent from Tampico to Monterrey.

Passengers and crew literally were ground to death beneath the wreckage, the American declared. None of the train crew was known to have escaped.

No further details or confirmation of the reported wreck could be obtained here today.

EMORY UNIV. ACADEMY ALREADY PROVING POPULAR

Many Applications Received by Head Master Mizell at Oxford

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) OXFORD, Ga., July 1.—The popularity of the new Emory university academy, located at this place, already is evidenced by the number of applications for admission received by the head master, Prof. R. C. Mizell. The university authorities have resolved not to subvert the dormitories nor the academy, consequently, on account of limited space, only about a hundred more applications for admission can possibly be considered.

Those in close touch with educational affairs believe now more firmly than ever that the new academy will meet a widespread demand in the south for institutions offering the best preparatory courses for students expecting to enter college.

In response to the many inquiries university authorities have authorized the following statement:

"The establishment of the academy abolishes the sub-freshman department at Oxford, and officers courses of study framed with direct reference to subsequent collegiate work."

"The faculty of the academy consists of four experienced instructors. The school will be conducted under its own government, apart from the college, and all non-resident students will be required to lodge in Haygood hall, a commodious new dormitory."

"In order that the students may have an instructor within easy reach at any time, three members of the faculty also will have rooms in Haygood hall."

FRENCH DENY USE OF SHELLS MADE IN U. S.

Ministry of War Issues Official Denial of Bavarian Prince's Charge

(By Associated Press.) PARIS, July 1.—Building on an interview published in the United States in which Prince Rupprecht, of Bavaria, was quoted as saying 30 per cent of the ship used by the French were manufactured in the United States, the ministry of war today gave the Associated Press the following official statement:

"Neither now nor at any time since the beginning of the war has the French army made use of any ships manufactured in the United States."

(By Associated Press.) SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Thousands of San Franciscans and visitors at the Panama-Pacific exposition participated today in a Woodrow Wilson day program. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Senator Wilson was to press a button at Cornish, N. H., releasing a large American flag in the Court of the Universe, where patriotic exercises were to be held.

State Song Writers Swap Forrest Adair With Shriner Ditties

An apparently harmless announcement that Yaarab Temple, of the Shriners, wanted an appropriate ditty to take along to sing on the western trip next Monday, has made a bit of trouble for Forrest Adair, the notable of the temple.

Incidentally Mr. Adair has become convinced of the far reaching effect of newspaper publicity. Not one ditty, but dozens of ditties on each mail have reached his office. And ditties not from one town or from one composer either. Some were set in music, and an ambitious girl composer sent a contribution eight times, including Charlie Chaplin's walk. Most of the words were written to go with the Tipperary and Mandalay tunes.

Toccoa and Gainesville were both represented in Thursday's mail, but no contributions called in person with their made judge of the contest.

ATLANTA SEES ANOTHER SHRINE PARADE FRIDAY

Yaarab Patrol and Band Will March Through Streets Again

Atlanta, which has a taste of Shrine parades and likes them, will see another parade Friday afternoon at 6 o'clock when Yaarab patrol and band, in full uniform will march from the Masonic temple.

The line of march will be down Peachtree and Whitehall streets to Mitchell, then to Broad and back to the temple.

The Shriners will leave Monday for the western trip. They will take with them 3,500 feet of films, with which they will take moving pictures of themselves leaving Atlanta, of the parade in Seattle, and the exercises at the San Francisco exposition. On Atlanta day they will also take pictures of scenes en route and these will be exhibited at some local picture theaters on the return home.

The exposition authorities, who allow no motion pictures to be taken inside the fair grounds, have made an exception in favor of the Yaarab patrol and band, and will allow pictures to be made of it on Atlanta day when the exposition authorities present it with bronze medals.

The Universal picture people have extended an invitation to the band and patrol to visit Universal City, where pictures will also be made. The band will play in Seattle on July 14 and also in a concert with other bands on July 15. Seattle also may ask for an exhibition drill.

STATES' BONDED DEBT IS SWAPPED FOR ANOTHER

Transaction Consummated by Flotation of Issue Purchased by Asa Candler

The state of Georgia on Thursday "swapped" its old bonded debt of $3,500,000 for a new bonded debt of the same amount. The transaction was consummated by the flotation of the $3,500,000 refunding bond issue purchased by Asa Candler of Atlanta. Mr. Candler had arranged for $2,729,716.50 of the bonds to be transferred at the National Park bank, New York, and sent his check for the remaining $778,283.50 to State Treasurer W. J. Speer Thursday morning.

While Mr. Candler buys the new issue and pays cash for it the state will not have any more cash than it had before, because it must use the money obtained from the new issue to take up the old issue which expired Thursday.

NO COUNTY BARBECUE ON THIS FOURTH OF JULY

It was announced Thursday at the court house that the usual Fourth of July barbecue given by the county commission will not be held this year because of the recent fire at Bellwood camp, which prevented the proper preparations being made. This will be a great disappointment to the many that have attended the cue since it became an annual event about fifteen years ago, but next year it was stated, the cue will be held as usual.

$1 & $1.50 House Dresses 69c Buy Them By the Half Dozen

So far as the dresses themselves are concerned, there's neither rhyme nor reason for marking them 69c.

Their worth is all out of proportion to such a price. You will know this better once you see them. For this is what you will find—dresses of good, strong and washable gingham, percales and lawns, figured, striped and in very dainty floral patterns and colors; fashioned becomingly, with three-quarter length sleeves and low collars, many of them piped and button trimmed. But the point you will probably be most impressed with is that they are made right—with the seam in the back that assures snug fit over the hips and a graceful, full width skirt.

No, 69c does not cover the cost of such dresses, as you may compute for yourself.

Ready Friday

Thirty NEW Styles of Waists At $1.00

Choose the two, the three, the half dozen styles (of thirty) that you like best, and every one will be a fresh and attractive waist.

We have planned to make Friday a day of days for the woman who would own new and inexpensive waists.

There are voiles plain, and voiles checked; there are dimities plain and dimities checked; a half dozen organdie waists, another half dozen all-over embroidery waists; there are very simple and very pretty tucked waists; waists very lacy, waists with black bows in their low collars—and the collars, seemingly the whole list of NEW collars (big organdie affairs) is used. See them!

Something out of the ordinary—these special fittings of corsets at $2.00, $2.50 and $3.50.

But so are the corsets—it is possible to sell them at these prices simply because the Frolaset people went out for business in an unusual way during the usual dull season in the corset making industry.

Models for the slight, average and full figure—and the right model will be yours once our corsetiers fit you.

Novelties in the Corset Section that deserve particular mention are—

A Deserved Tax Exemption.

The general assembly should not adjourn without submitting to the people of Georgia a constitutional amendment exempting college endowments from taxation. It does not reflect credit upon the state that such a tax is now levied and collected, and the sooner the condition is relieved the better off will be Georgia and her educational institutions.

The legislature itself is powerless to exempt from taxation college endowments because of a provision that found its way into the constitution of 1877. Prior to the adoption of that constitution, Georgia in company with the other thirteen original states exempted from taxation all property of schools and colleges. The provisions in the constitution of 1877 attracted practically no attention when it was adopted, and afterward many persons expressed surprise to learn that the constitution contained such an objectionable and ill-advised provision.

The provision of the 1877 constitution should be repealed, to the end that the legislature may exempt from taxation college endowments. The present attitude of the state toward institutions of higher learning, particularly with reference to the taxation of endowment funds, is entirely inconsistent with the general desire of Georgia and Georgians toward the subject of education.

It is a short-sighted policy that invests millions in laying the foundation for the education of future citizens and then strangles the life out of the higher institutions of learning by means of taxation.

The wisdom of the state in improving its common school system will not be questioned by any one. The state is perfectly right in improving the common school system.

But the state's interest in education should not—and we feel sure it does not—end with the common schools. The state should do everything possible to encourage colleges and universities, and an important step in this direction would be the exemption of endowments from taxation.

Submit the question to the people themselves, and accept their decision.

Judge Ellis' Bills.

It is to be hoped that the Legislature will give thoughtful attention to the bills that have been drafted by Judge W. D. Ellis, of Atlanta, and introduced in the house by the members of the Fulton county delegation. The bills seek to correct the divorce evil in Georgia, which in recent years, has grown to such proportions as to be alarming. They merit the fullest consideration.

It is unquestionably true that if the Legislature enacts the bills along the lines they have been drafted, a great forward step will have been taken and much progress registered toward breaking up the abuse, which reflects discredit upon the state.

The first bill provides that in case of a total divorce neither of the parties shall be permitted to remarry until a year shall have elapsed after the final decree. There can be no valid or reasonable objection urged to this restriction.

The second bill provides that no total divorce shall be granted on the uncorroborated evidence of one of the parties to the suit. The importance of this provision is obvious and should appeal at once to the Legislature.

The third bill makes provision for the appointment by a trial judge of an attorney to represent the state at divorce trials, if it is deemed necessary.

No jurist in Georgia has had a wider experience than Judge Ellis. The weakness of the present divorce laws of the state and the consequent abuses and scandals resulting therefrom have impressed themselves upon Judge Ellis, and he has sought to the best of his ability to help the situation in his capacity as a judge. He now comes to the legislature and offers to it the benefit of a knowledge gathered from experience on the bench, in the hope that the divorce laws may be properly amended. The bills embody the ideas that he has gathered in his experience.

When it comes to Wilson, New England appears to be willing to unbend from the rigidity of the rock-bound Republican attitude.

Apparently Germany is restricting its submarine warfare only in the cases of neutral United States ships. Norway and Sweden apparently haven't protested.

Germany's Need for Cotton.

The Associated Press reports yesterday carried a dispatch from Berlin that the military commandant of the province in which the German capital is situated, had issued an order prohibiting the use of cotton for the manufacture of fabrics for ordinary usage.

The German government needs all available cotton for the manufacture of high explosives to be used in the war, and it is small wonder that the military commandant of Berlin has taken such drastic action.

The dispatch is unusually significant, and in a measure helps to explain why the British government has been so persistent in its efforts to keep cotton from reaching Germany. It is quite evident that Germany is in dire straits for cotton from which to manufacture one of the deadliest of all explosives.

Under these circumstances it is perfectly natural that Germany should become over-solicitous about the freedom of the seas and the interference by Great Britain with neutral commerce destined for neutral ports.

We do not believe that Great Britain and her allies should be allowed to run rough shod over the rights of American commerce, and we feel sure that the administration at Washington intends to see that our rights under international law are respected. The news contained in this dispatch from Berlin, however, shows up the situation in a new light, that may prove an important factor in shaping the course of America with respect to our commerce.

There seems to be a disposition in certain quarters to prod the president with reference to America's attitude toward Great Britain and her allies concerning interference with neutral commerce. Evidence of this disposition have cropped out from time to time. We believe the purpose or desire to be ill-advised, and feel very confident that the president and his immediate advisers in Washington are informed concerning every phase of the situation, and will handle it with a degree of statesmanship that will insure success.

While America is entirely neutral as between the European belligerents, Americans should not forget that this country and the weaker republics to the south of us are among the richest prizes in the world.

If the allies win this war, there is every reason to believe that the world will settle down to a century or more of peace just as followed the Napoleonic wars. But if the allies are defeated, there is no telling what may happen. It is well enough for Americans to consider the temptations this country might possibly offer to a triumphant Germany, fired with victory and in need of money.

The farmer who found a wallet and returned it to the owner was dubbed an honest farmer, but did anybody ever hear of any but an honest farmer?

Secretary Daniels Commended.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels delivered an address last week at the Naval War college at Newport, which has attracted favorable notice throughout the country, and justifies the belief that official minds in Washington are beginning to think seriously of the question of preparedness for war.

Secretary Daniels discussed the lessons that this country may learn from the submarine and aerial warfare in Europe, and the New York Sun, which has heretofore criticized Mr. Daniels severely, says in his speech a deep significance. Says the Sun:

"The significance of his reference to the English navy is enforced by his pledge that the department will keep an open mind for every suggestion of improvement that may be brought to it. His speech amounted, in fact, both to an invitation and a pledge.

"When the service does lay its facts before Congress, as Mr. Daniels urges, its presentation will have the support of the powerful influence of the civilian administrators.

"Mr. Daniels has not always appeared to advantage in the discussion of naval affairs. Yesterday, however, he struck the note the whole country has waited to hear. In his declaration for a powerful fleet, fully equipped for modern war in all its phases, Josephus Daniels spoke as a secretary of the United States navy ought to speak."

The New York World, always friendly to the administration, but never partial to the secretary of the navy, refers to the speech as a "strong" one that should satisfy those who have been the severest critics of the secretary. Says the World:

"Next to Mr. Bryan, Mr. Daniels has been the member of the President's Cabinet most often and most harshly criticized. Nothing in his conduct of the office has justified the abuse that has been wreaked upon him. If he successfully devotes himself to such modernization of the navy as recent developments suggest, the need for which he so well states, he will disarm opposition by distinguished success."

The Philadelphia Ledger declares that the secretary's proposed "advisory council" ought to make for unity and efficiency in the maintenance of the nation's naval defenses, but adds that its success will depend upon the extent to which the secretary himself may be willing to utilize and be governed by the judgment of his expert advisers. Says the Ledger:

"There is no doubt that the creation of a council, composed of the officers who are already responsible for the working of the various naval bureaus was a law to itself subject only to the conference, should make for fuller co-operation, and should lead to better results than when each bureau was a law to itself subject only to the supervision of the secretary. Mr. Daniels specifically recognizes the present bureau chiefs as capable and experienced; it is to be hoped that he will also recognize that in purely military matters their judgment and not his own should govern the policy of the navy."

Doctors have discovered the war shock as a new ailment, but appendicitis will continue to be the standard ailment during times of peace, at any rate.

Why Travel Cures.

YOU are nervous and run down," said the doctor to the patient. "You ought to take a trip somewhere. What you need most of all is a change of scene."

To thousands of persons these words have been spoken, and time and again this simple prescription of travel works like a charm.

It has cured insomnia of long standing, it has banished the demon of indigestion, it has quieted obscure aches and pains. Persistent fatigue has under its influence been healed, and the weary, restless calmness of mind has taken the place of feverish restlessness.

Marvelling at their complete restoration to health, those who have been helped attribute their good fortune usually to some specific virtue in the climate, the air, or the water of the place at which they have been sojourning.

Their symptoms have been so acute and varied that, they argue, it is incredible to suppose the change of scene alone could have cured them. In Nevertheless, change of scene was really all that they had needed. It was this true therapeutic agent in their case, and it was this by reason of the fact that it had been enough to turn their thoughts into new channels.

More specifically, by providing them with novel sights and sounds and talk about things that had nothing to do with their ailments, they had drawn their attention from themselves, and by that very fact had caused the disappearance of the symptoms which had so long troubled them.

Also, in many cases, they had had the effect of withdrawing the invalid from a home environment radiating suggestions that affected them harmfully.

But travel is not necessarily a cure. A change of environment was an "unsympathetic" one. On the contrary, it may have been too sympathetic, the anxious solicitude of the sick person's relatives confirming him in his nervous habit of occupying his mind with his symptoms and sensations.

This is the central truth to be remembered in connection with the cure of nervous disorders—that is, functional disorders of the nervous system.

No matter how they may have originated, it is concentration of the attention upon their symptoms that keeps them from the cure. The only way to get the patient thinking of something else, occupy his mind with interesting ideas, and the road to health is opened.

It is the virtue of travel that it does this very thing. The diversity of sights and sounds which travel provides, the change of the environment, the necessity for subjecting oneself to changed conditions of life—all this helps to break up the habit of self-concentration.

But travel is expensive. Not everybody can afford to go abroad or make a prolonged stay at the seashore or in the mountains. As there is no effective substitute within reach of the slender bank account?

Most assuredly there is. The cultivation of some interesting hobby, the reading of lively stories, intercourse with friends, careful avoidance of all worries and external things, and keep it turned from thoughts of self, has a curative value to nervous patients.

"The Anarchists."

ALL this talk about anarchy in the newspapers is just a little, cheap, friendly, and harmless. You assume at once that every anarchist is a bomb thrower and an assassin. As a rule, violence of any kind is condemned by us. It brings the worst of us to the gallows. We oppose violence by government as well as by the individual.

Anarchy simply means absence of government. We do not believe in government by force at all; and for that we have some mighty good reasons.

We have got our bad name from the weak and loathsome anarchy that has been driven to us. You put a big idea into a two-cent brain and it is liable to explode.

For that matter, take Christianity. It is a noble ideal, but what monstrosities have its professors committed—tyrannies, wars, persecutions, cruelties! You don't say these things at the door of Jesus, do you? No, you attribute them to punk human nature.

Patriotism can call a good thing. But look what patriotism is doing in Europe now! It is producing a concentrated compound of all the crimes of which men are capable. Do you blame patriotism for that? Or, rather, don't you blame the ignorance that sees only in organized murder and destruction an outlet for its passions?

I don't insist on your being an anarchist, any more than you would force me to be a Christian or a patriot. I only insist that you be a human being, and not to be judged by the half insane people who bring their theories into disrepute.

You are not an anarchist, or no law impossible or "crazy." That is your privilege. But how about the system you now have? Is it anything to boast of?

What has government by force done that you should hang on to it? It has established and by law protected the most manifest frauds and wrongs. It protects the present method of the unjust distribution of wealth. It has a few wallow in dollars and a many starve. It has filthy prisons. It settles international questions by butchering thousands instead of by rational adjustment. It proceeds altogether upon the assumption that force makes right, that because a government can suppress therefore it is just, and that because our nation can lick another nation, therefore we are God's favorites.

Anarchy is simply the ultimate freedom. It is the firing line of human emancipation. It puts government on the instant of overthrow.

It is the purest, highest ideal.

Of course, you're afraid to print this. Your newspaper would dare.

"Then why do you persist in hissing the performer?"

As a steamer was leaving the harbor of Athens a well-dressed young passenger approached the captain and pointing to the distant hills, inquired: "What is that white stuff on the hills, captain?"

"That snow, madam," replied the captain.

"Well," remarked the lady, "I thought so myself, but a gentleman just now told me it was Greece."

"That's just it," replied the captain.

Mrs. Murphy—I hear yer brother-in-law, Pat Keegan, is pretty bad off."

Mrs. Casey—Sure, he's good for a year yet.

Mrs. Murphy—As long as that?

Mrs. Casey—Yes; he's had four different doctors, and each one av yim give three months to live—Puck.

It appears that at the rehearsal of a play a wonderful climax had been reached, which was to be heightened by the effective use of the usual thunder and lightning. The stage caretaker was given the order. The words were spoken, and instantly a noise which resembled a succession of pistol shots were heard off the wings.

"What on earth are you doing, man?" shouted the manager, rushing behind the scenes. "Do you call that thunder? It isn't but like 'em!"

"Awful sorry, sir," responded the carpenter; "but the fact is, sir, I couldn't hear you because of the storm. That was real thunder, sir!"

The women of an upstate town recently organized a musical appreciation club and for a while everything was going smoothly. The club consisted of one of the members after her return from one of the engagements, "what was the topic under discussion by the club this afternoon?" At first Louise couldn't remember, but finally she exclaimed: "Now I recollect! We discussed that braken looking woman that's just moved in across the Street and Debusay."

EXTINCT AMERICAN BIRDS

BY FREDERICK A. HARRIS.
A STATEMENT from the United States Biological Survey, contradicting the rumor that it was willing to pay $10,000 for a nest and eggs of the American passenger pigeon, has recently attracted attention again to the mysterious disappearance of these birds, which once existed in immense flocks throughout the eastern United States.

The extermination of the passenger pigeon, like that of the buffalo, is rather a classic; but few people are aware that quite a number of interesting and valuable birds have been exterminated. The passenger pigeon, which once existed in immense flocks throughout the eastern United States, has recently attracted attention again to the mysterious disappearance of these birds, which once existed in immense flocks throughout the eastern United States.

The skin of a Labrador duck, once a favorite of New England sportsmen, is now worth from a thousand to twelve hundred dollars, and a living specimen has not been seen for nearly forty years. The last Eskimo curlew on record was killed in South America about 1860. The Carolina parakeet, the only North American species of parrot which once ranged in great flocks from Florida to the Great Lakes, was represented at one time by a single aged specimen in captivity. An offer of $1,000 by private individuals, mentioned in the recent government statement, failed to bring forth a single specimen of the passenger pigeon's nest.

The extermination of this bird has excited special interest among the ornithologists of the world. Inasmuch as the birds were shot by the thousand with small cannon, clubbed to death on their roosts, and otherwise ruthlessly exterminated, it is wonderful that their numbers were reduced; but that a bird, once so abundant, should have completely disappeared is considered almost unaccountable. Yet generous offers for specimens of this bird or its nest, which have been standing for the past ten years, have brought countless specimens of doves and other pigeons, but not a single passenger pigeon.

There are, however, two species of wild pigeons remaining in the United States, although the fact is not known to the general public. One is the passenger pigeon of the southwest and the Pacific coast. It is a fine, large bird, and flies with a flapping noise like that of a pigeon. It is a native of the southwestern United States, and is very shy. In Florida the white-crowned pigeon is seen occasionally, although it is more common in the keys than on the mainland.

The extermination of the Carolina parakeet is not so difficult to understand. Although this bird once ranged from the Gulf States to the north, it was as abundant as the pigeon. It was a beautiful creature, slightly smaller than a dove, bright green in color, with red markings on its throat and breast. Its plumage was valuable for millinery purposes. Furthermore, the parakeet had an extremely confiding and affectionate disposition. Like many other species of parrots, it was easily tamed, and the pairs were very devoted. When a gunner shot into a flock, killing and wounding a number of birds, the others would always come back and help the wounded ones, so that the whole flock was often destroyed.

The Eskimo curlew, once a favorite game bird, was destroyed for the same reason. Each of them had a limited range, nesting in Labrador and flying south in winter along the Atlantic coast as far as New York City. The extermination of these birds, and their extermination was necessary rapid.

In addition to these birds, which have disappeared forever from America, there are a number which are on the verge of extinction and will soon be sought by collectors at high prices. One cannot help reflecting

Hundreds of Insane Carried From Field in Ambulance Auto.

BY HERBERT COREY.
"Anything but the nuts," says the drivers of the American ambulances. "Deliver us from the nuts!"

Two weeks ago two men of the Dunkirk squad came to the city to get out of the city. They had half a dozen men who had become insane under the stress of fighting. This often happens. More often, perhaps, the victim's nervous system goes to pieces. He is perfectly sane, but so weakly that he is taken out of the battle zone instantly would surely follow.

"Six were howling lunatics," said the drivers. "We had to strap them to the stretchers in the cars."

Each of the little American cars holds three "strapped cases"—two side by side, and one nursing the other overboard. The road is very bad, for they were being continually torn to pieces by shell. The night was excessively dark, except as it came from the light of the exploding shells. Neither driver had an orderly with him on his car.

Imagine, if you can, the sensations of those drivers, as they felt their way back over impassable roads, unaided, in danger every minute from a dropping shell—while three strapped lunatics howled and belched in each car.

An ambulance driver's experience with lunatics are not the only unpleasant ones. There was the case of Driver Ahlstrom, for example. He met a train of wounded at the Gare du Nord in Paris. Five of the men put in his car suffered from the heat. The fifth was a strapping, lusty, big chested "nut."

Ahlstrom's Experience.

"It isn't often that we have to tie a 'nut,'" exclaims Ahlstrom. "Most of them are melancholic. They just sit and weep."

So this poor chap was permitted to sit upon the bench in the ambulance body, to dourly regard the "cavities" of the city, and through one of the crowded streets of the Latin Quarter, some instinct advised Ahlstrom to look behind. He saw the "nut" running down the street.

Whenever he caught up to the lunatic with the car the latter would stop. Then Ahlstrom would back the car up to the pavement and tell him to get in. Then the lunatic would run on. Finally Ahlstrom became diplomatic.

"Next time I got off and took off my cap," said he. "Will m'sieur be kind enough to resume his seat?" I asked.

"But it will be a pleasure," said the poor devil, taking off his cap and bowing to me. So I bowed again, and he bowed again, and I climbed back into the ambulance. When we got to the hospital, he stepped out.

"Permit me to thank monsieur for his courtesy," said he. "The little things of life add so greatly to our happiness."

British Show No Mourning.

The British officers no longer wear any visible sign of mourning, according to the men who have a chance to see them in the field.

"I don't think it is correct action has been taken," said the man who first noticed them. It is rather that the English have fully awakened—at least, those in the field have—about the necessity of mourning.

They believe that the very life of England depends upon the success of the allied arms. Each will gladly give his life to help attain that success. Then the British officers in the field are drawn to mourn for a man who has given his life for his country."

It seems only the other day that we saw Colonel Ryerson, of Toronto, the president of the Canadian Red Cross, upon the Paris boulevard. His twenty-year-old son died at La Bassée. There was no black band or mourning upon the father's arm.

"It isn't that they are not brave enough," said one, "but they can't stand against white men. That's the trouble. You'll notice that Italy has been heard of the Indian troops of late."

It is perhaps well that judgment be reserved. The hard winter took a good deal of the spark out of the men, and the men in the field are all alike. The British military operations keep the world from knowing whether the warmer sun has restored their courage, or if it is doubt that at the very first they were of little account.

The men of my squad alone hauled in a single day that it would be far better if some of the time and thought spent in obtaining specimens of extinct birds were utilized in saving the species while some of them are still alive.

The trumpeter crane, or whooping crane, of the Mississippi valley, once existed in great flocks. It is a tall, stately bird, snow-white in color, and with a trumpet call that can be heard at a great distance. Not many years ago, whooping cranes were a favorite game bird up and down the Mississippi valley, but now one is as scarce as a hen's tooth. The great whooping crane, which once ranged all over the northwestern United States and into Canada, is also practically extinct as the result of overhunting.

Probably few people who live in the Atlantic states are aware that a species of prairie chicken once ranged all over the open country of Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York and adjacent states. This eastern prairie chicken was known as the "beach hen," and was as plentiful as it was practically extinct. The birds were protected, however, on the Island of Martha's Vineyard off the coast of Massachusetts, and there are now about a thousand of them upon this preserve. There is probably no other bird in the world which has such a limited range.

About twenty years ago, a giant woodcock, known as the ivory-billed woodcock, was comparatively common in the swamps and forests of the Gulf States. This bird was over a foot long, shiny black in color, with striking red markings about the eyes and bill. It is named. The ivory-billed woodcock has been practically exterminated for no other reason than that its size and its striking markings attracted the attention of every gunner.

That wild birds can be saved from extinction by prompt measures is shown by the case of the woodcock and the wood-cock. The wood-cock is one of the most ornate species of duck in the world, rivaling the Chinese mandarin in the brilliancy of its plumage and its markings. It is also of peculiar interest because it nests in hollow trees and has a peculiar musical note not at all like a quack or other ducks. Its numbers had at one time almost brought about the extermination of the wood-cock, but the United States Biological Survey and other agencies in favor of game preservation brought the fact to public attention. As a result, the wood-cock was protected for a long term of years, and it is undoubtedly increasing at the present time. The wood-cock is so unique a species that it is almost to woodland streams and ponds that it has a strong sentiment in favor of protecting it for all time and not regarding it as a game bird.

The American wood-cock is a unique bird of the snipe family, which lives in dense, wet woods. It is strictly nocturnal for the very reason that its eyes and feet are fairly in the back of its head, so that it may watch the approach of enemies. It is usually hunted at night, and is a valuable bird for the miniature proboscis, by means of which it gets a grip on the slippery snail worm and pulls him out of the mud. A diet of nothing but snail worms makes the wood-cock an extremely delicate morsel, appreciated by epicures the world over. Furthermore, he has a swift, sudden flight which makes him one of the most difficult marks, so that if given a fair chance he will prevent his own extermination. In fact, wood-cock are now reported increasing in many sections.

These examples show that the extermination of species may be prevented if public sentiment is aroused in time. The growing interest in the birds of the world will probably save many other American game birds from destruction, by creating a general appreciation of their value.

ninety-six Indians who had shot themselves through the head in order to get out of the city. These Indians were taken to the city in ambulances. I do not profess to know how much truth there may be in these frequently repeated stories. Nor do I know how true is the story that the Indians were taken to the city in ambulances. "One day they put every third man who had wounded himself in the head in a wall, and shot him in front of the regiment," the story goes.

It sounds true, that story. That is good discipline, in the face of the enemy. And it is certain that the Indians are no longer shooting themselves through the left hand. Poor devils!

Two youngsters of the American ambulance were near the front lines the other day. "These fields have been fought over a score of times. One boy—his home is in uptown New York—jogged the elbow of the other boy, who lives in the front line, and said: 'There's a man sticking out of a grave,' said he. 'Let us get the spade and bury the poor fellow deeper.'"

So the other boy agreed, and they got the spade and went to work. But they did not fully realize the work before them. They were new at the job, and they did not know how all this smiling countryside is hidden beneath the fresh dead.

"We found there were six or seven other dead men buried beneath this man who was on top," said the boy who told the story. "So we gave it up and went back to the car."

HOW DEER GROW HORNS.

A record of the conditions of the deer, moose and elk in the Zoological park of New York City proves that their formidable looking horns and antlers are newly acquired each year, are grown within four months. The old horns are dropped in the spring. The largest elk in the zoo lost both his antlers last year, nine hours apart, on March 21. On June 21 the full length antler had grown, although it was still soft or "in the velvet."

The growth of the horn leaves a small circle of skin exposed. Within a week this is covered with brown skin. Then a rounded knob appears, resembling a tomato, except in color. It soon begins to lengthen out into the horns which are to come, the growth sometimes amounting to nearly an inch in a day.

When soft and growing, the horns are full of blood. After they have reached their full length they begin to harden. By October the velvet has been worn off by rubbing against tree trunks and the horns are hard and smooth.

SIDEWALK CHARGING BATTERY.

A sidewalk charging battery, for recharging electric vehicles, is one of the latest additions to the city garage. It consists of a small box mounted upon an electrically welded pole. It has a steel spring, a motor and an ammeter, a pilot lamp, a rheostat and a main line switch.

Connections are made through an underground cable. The motor works on electric current, and is capable of recharging the battery of a car in five minutes. The motor is mounted on the side of the garage, which unlocks the box and makes the connection for recharging the battery in the machine. A provision for making the young men use the battery is made, and this fixes the price to be paid for the service. This convenience will enable the electric vehicle to be recharged as readily as the gasoline motor is provided with additional fuel when its supply runs short.

TODAY'S EVENING STORY

HER FIRELESS COOKER

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werners.)

WITH the proverbial wisdom that has been credited to woman since the time of Eve, Martha Crandall had postponed her request until her husband was settling himself in an easy chair to enjoy his evening pipe, after a hearty supper of his favorite dishes. However, for once this time-tried strategy had failed utterly to accomplish its purpose.

"A fireless cooker? Buy you a fireless cooker when I go to town Saturday?" Peter had repeated in indignant surprise. "Certainly not, Martha Crandall! There are plenty of ways that lead to the poor farm, and goodness knows, you seem to have discovered most of them, but I draw the line at new-fangled contraptions like 'fireless cookers'!"

"They're not new-fangled!" protested Martha. "People have been using them for years now, and they're practical time-savers, to say nothing of being very economical of fuel!" she added hopefully, for economy in all things was Peter's hobby. "Just think what a convenience one would be Sunday!" she went on. "Why, I could prepare things and put them in before we started for church, and when we got home dinner would be all cooked and ready to eat, without the delay and bother we usually have on Sundays."

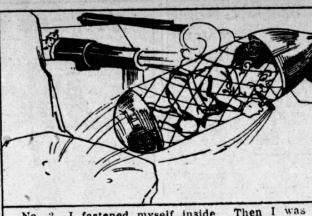

Peter laughed. "Do you really mean to say, Martha, that you think any one could cook in a box like that?—he pointed a scornful finger at an illustration in the folder Martha held—"without fire?"

Martha, almost in tears, stood by her guns manfully. "Of course they can," she declared. "It's the easiest thing in the world! Suppose I were cooking beans, for instance. All I'd have to do would be to get the beans boiling well, then heat these plates!" she was referring to the illustration in the advertisement now—"put one in the bottom of the cooker, set the beans in, put the other hot plate on top and shut the cooker. In two or three hours, or whenever we wanted them, the beans would be all cooked and piping hot, and there'd be no danger of burning them either. It's just the same with other things, too. Think what it would mean in the summer to be able to let the fire in the range go out, and have a good, comfortable house and a good, hot dinner, too. There wouldn't be so much stove wood to cut, either, Peter."

Peter only chuckled derisively. "You're certainly got that advertisement well memorized," he admitted, "but I'm afraid it isn't going to do you much good. I'd be ashamed to meet the neighbors if they found out I'd sunk any money in a fool scheme like that. Why, common sense ought to tell you that nobody can cook without fire." As Martha said nothing more, Peter congratulated himself on having so easily nipped this new nonsense in the bud.

Martha was the best little wife in the world. He told himself proudly, but, being ready had made a request and been refused. Instead she laughingly told him to bring her some candy.

Darkness had fallen when Peter got back, and after a long day in the hot, dusty town he found himself anticipating the quiet evening before him, with Martha at the other side of the table sewing while he smoked and read his paper. He was hungry, too, and Martha always had something especially good for supper on the days he had to go to town. She was the right kind of wife, Martha was!

He left the horse at the barn with directions to Sam, the hired man, to look after her, and hurried to the house. To his surprise the kitchen was dark, and on investigation he found the house deserted. Such a thing had never occurred before, and immediately thoughts of some dire calamity having befallen during his absence rushed to his mind. A bit of paper on the kitchen table—a note from Martha—attracted his attention.

"Dear Peter—I was afraid you would be late getting back, so you had so much to do in town today, so I have taken the small wagon and drove over to Mother Crandall's to spend the night. You will find your supper on the table. Said, cake, and a pitcher of lemonade. What kind of a supper was that for a hungry man? Peter Crandall wanted something hot!"

Suddenly his eyes fell on the pall under the sink. Oh, yes, she had said part of his supper was there. Now, what under the sun made her put anything to eat in a pall under the sink? Another glance disclosed the fact that the pall was none other than the big wooden feed pail he had missed from the barn a few days before. Martha had fitted to it the iron cover of the cistern manhole.

Wonderingly Peter raised the cover. Underneath was a metal plate that he vaguely remembered as a part of some of his farm equipment, although he couldn't exactly place it. He reached for the plate, but quickly withdrew his hand with a yell of surprise and pain. The plate was hot! Protected with a folded dish towel, Peter tried again, and with better success.

Underneath the plate was a small galvanized pail, and packed between it and the wooden one was something hard and unyielding, covered with burlap securely tacked to the wooden pail inside. Peter tore loose the burlap to see what was underneath and found excelsior. A light was beginning to dawn on Peter Crandall. A jerk of the cover on the small pail and the rest of his supper was revealed—Irish stew, an old favorite of Peter's and piping hot! Peter emptied the savory concoction into a china dish and stood gazing at it thoughtfully, with a twinkle in his eye.

"So that was why she suddenly got so nervous about staying here alone!" he mused. She wanted to give me a chance to discover her home-made fireless cooker when she wasn't around to be argued with over it. Well, this isn't any argument against this Irish stew that I know of," he admitted as he settled himself before it with a sigh of satisfaction, "and I guess I'll have to buy her a cooker the next time I go to town, a right!" he added with sheepish grin, "for I've just about used this one beyond repair trying to

WHEN the Doors of Our Store Close on Saturday at One o'Clock, They Will Not Open Until Tuesday Morning. We Celebrate the 4th on Monday. Watch the Papers Monday for Announcement of Interest to All Women.

A Great National Celebration of Our National Holiday

139 years ago—on July 4th—a great shout of joy went up from the little colony of enthusiastic Englishmen and Dutchmen who threw off the yoke of their Fatherland to become American citizens.

George Washington caused the Declaration to be read at the head of every brigade of his army, and the soldiers pledged fealty to the cause of Independence.

The populace of New York City hurled the leaden statue of George III from its pedestal at Bowling Green and molded it into bullets, and in all of the cities of the New Country similar demonstrations of enthusiasm took place. For on that day the American people celebrated the birth of a new nation.

On Monday next 100,000,000 American people will celebrate this notable event with pride and gratitude in being one of these who make up the greatest nation of the earth.

May "Old Glory" wave from every Atlanta home on that day.

Extra Base Drives Prove Effective in Winning Second Game From Barons

Long Hitting Lands Second From Barons

Crackers Get Extra Bases on Four of Their Nine Hits—Moran, McDonald and Kaufman Drive Out Triples—Thompson vs. Johnson Today

BIRMINGHAM, July 1.—The Crackers introduced a bunch of left handed swatters in the game with the Barons here Wednesday afternoon. Bill Smith's charges slammed out nine hits for a total of sixteen bases, including one double and three triples. With one or two exceptions their long hits were turned into runs, and they captured the game by the score of 4 to 1.

Here Kelly and Burleigh Grimes were the opposing slammers, and the visiting gunner had the better of the argument. The Barons collected but five hits off his delivery, and but for the miff of a fly to left in the sixth inning by Lee, the Barons would not have scored. The Crackers did not bunch any consistent attack on Grimes, but as stated above, they managed to count extra bases on several of their wallop, and these were generally turned into runs.

The Crackers began scoring as soon as the game got under way. After McDonald had grounded out to start the first inning, Moran drove a long triple right and scored on Lee's infield out. In the second inning it was Kaufman who touched Grimes up for a three bagger. Williams' single to center scored the first baseman. In the sixth Rumber doubled, and later stole third. When Hale pegged wild trying to catch him at third, he scored.

The last run of the visitors was scored in the ninth. In that inning it looked like the Crackers were going to count a bunch, but Hale leaped above, by nipping Kelly off third. Instead, he walked, and Kelly singled down the first base line. Grimes threw to third too late to catch Blaud on McDonald's bunt, and all hands were safe. Moran grounded to short, and Blaud was cut down at the plate. Hale then picked Kelly off third, but Grimes lost control, and walked both Lee and Manning, forcing McDonald over the plate. Kaufman grounded out.

The Barons got their one run in the sixth. Combs lifted off Lee, and he reached second when the ball was hit. Sloan fielded to Moran with no advance. Combs reached third on McBride's out, and counted on Ellam's single.

Carl Thompson is expected to face Arthur Johnson in the third game of the series today.

Wheat Closed 5-8c Up to 5
Off--Corn and Oats Up

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 1.—Definite announcement at the steamship Armenian, sunk by a German mine, was engaged in British administration, had considerable effect toward strengthening wheat. After opening higher to 4½ advance, quotations underwrote 4½ cent advance and closed about 4½ cent lower than last night for July and September.

Wheat reacted on estimates that the crop in the United States would be 9.0 bushels more than was indicated a month ago. Close was unsettled at a shade off 4½ cents. The market was quiet until early evening when it came firm when wheat started to rise again. The opening for unchanged was 4½¢ higher. The closing for unchanged was 4½¢ higher. The market was quiet, but later by general net gains.

The following were the ruling prices in the exchange today:

ATTORNEY W. M. HOWARD IS APPOINTED UMPIRE

Having failed to reach an agreement on the leasehold estate values of the Augusta and Savannah and Southwestern railroads, both of which are controlled and operated by the Central of Georgia, Chairman C. M. Candler of the railroad commission arbitrator for the state of Georgia and Attorney Alex W. Smith of Atlanta arbitrator for the Central have selected Attorney W. M. Howard of Augusta as an umpire.

The courts having held that the state could not tax the properties of the two roads in question because of exemptions allowed in their charters the arbitrator general ordered the Central to make tax returns upon the leasehold estate value in the roads. When the Central's valuations were in the opinion of General Wright entirely too low he assessed the values and the Central announced its intention to arbitrate.

GEORGIA'S AUTO TAX LAW HELD UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Injunctions at Savannah Against Enforcement—Unfair, Says Judge Charlton

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) SAVANNAH, Ga., July 1.—Holding the Georgia automobile registration law unconstitutional, Judge Walter O. Charlton in the superior court today granted a temporary injunction against the city and state to prevent the enforcement of the ordinance requiring the registration and payment of fees by the owners of these vehicles.

Judge Charlton declared the provision for the distribution of the funds accumulated by the state from the payment of fees according to the rural routes in the county "violates every rule of the constitution and incidentally double taxes certain citizens for the benefit of other citizens." The court asks "why should the state and others like them raise a fund not to make better roads in Georgia, not to foster or advance any project of general interest, or even to help out the revenue of the state, but for the sole purpose of accumulating a sum for distribution among counties which may not have roads."

Supreme Court Will Have to Decide, Says Cook

Secretary of State Philip Cook, the official who is charged with the duty of registering automobiles, expressed surprise and disappointment when he was informed by Judge Charlton that the city of Savannah had enjoined the state and the city of Savannah from collecting automobile registration fees.

"This means," said Secretary Cook, "that the case will be tested in the state supreme court and the constitutionality of the statute will be decided by that tribunal. In the face of the decision of the United States supreme court in the Maryland case, I am at a loss to understand where the Georgia law is invalid."

"In that case the United States supreme court held that a state had a right to levy an automobile registration tax both as a police measure and for the purpose of raising money with which to keep up the highways upon which the automobiles travel."

So important did the state consider the action brought in Savannah that Attorney General Waddell joined with Solicitor General Walter Hartridge in resisting the petition for injunction.

DIXIE HIGHWAY MEET IS HELD AT EASTMAN

Enthusiastic Address Is Delivered by Commissioner W. T. Anderson

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) EASTMAN, Ga., July 1.—A meeting of the advocates of the Eastman route of the Dixie Highway through the counties of Twiggs, Bleckley, Dodge, Telfair, Jeff Davis, Appling and Bacon counties was held in Eastman yesterday. Large delegations of officials and representatives of business men from the several counties were present for the purpose of reporting progress and consulting as to the best means of obtaining official designation of the route.

The commissioners and ordinaries from the several counties reported that the roads in their counties were in fair condition, and that the work of placing them in the best possible condition was being rapidly pushed forward and would be completed within the next few weeks.

U. S. Has Billion Trade Balance on Books for Year

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, July 1.—A billion dollar trade balance—the greatest in American history—in a year which has seen commerce depressed by eleven months of world war, in the commercial record of the United States. Official announcement was made today at the department of commerce that with the closing of the fiscal year last midnight it was certain that the billion dollar mark had been passed.

"The figure for eleven months ending May 31," it was announced, "showing a favorable balance of $983,117,479. As thirteen ports which ordinarily handle 80 per cent of the country's foreign trade show for June an export balance of approximately $500,000,000, it is now known that the excess of exports over imports has at this date exceeded $1,000,000,000, surpassing by nearly $400,000,000 the highest record heretofore made."

Department of commerce experts point out that the immense trade balance is not owed to orders for munitions of war.

In fact, manufacturers generally other than of foodstuffs have been less than in the similar period before the war.

Full returns of yesterday's treasury receipts show that $44,715,154 piled into the government's cash drawers on the last day of the old fiscal year and reduced the deficit to $25,864,281.

Income tax receipts yesterday alone were $36,393,525 and for the year were $75,828,675, about $8,500,000 more than received last year.

Payments may be made until July 10, and several million dollars more are expected from that source.

Customs for the year brought in $269,268,107, a falling off of about $82,000,000 from the year before.

The net balance in the treasury today was $32,025,716, much larger than it has been for six months.
